We're in Luck.
The Bee's Madisonville correspondent has secured, through the kindness of Prof. Boring, the publication of his most excellent essay, read at the closing exercises of the Madisonville Chautauque Circle. It will be interesting and instructive to all, but especially to those engaged in Chautauque work. As an authority on classics, Prof. Boring has few equals and no superiors in the State.

No Drums.
Earlington, unlike most towns of its size, is not afflicted with that despised class of citizens called "drums." At every point of the compass everything denotes thrift and prosperity; and it was lately remarked by one of our oldest citizens that we possessed within our borders but one real "goods-box artist."

Children never object to taking German Prune Syrup. It is pleasant to take and effectual. For sale by all druggists. Price 50c per bottle.

Needs a Barber.
We suggest, as a matter of taste only, that Dickson's park under the shearing treatment. The grass is too long to meet favor with the artistic eye. Some enterprising Knight of the Shears might find him a job by calling upon the gentleman having charge of this tastefully planned resort. Trim the grass that the flowers can be seen and be admired.

Shiloh's Cure the great Cough and Croup Cure, is for sale by Dr. Pockett since contains twenty-five doses, only 25c. Children love it. For sale at St. Bernard drug store.

Merchants Almost in Sight.
Two men are holding meetings in the country southwest of here. They are followers of the Mormon doctrine and claim Utah as their home. They are ostensibly out for the purpose of securing converts to their mode of worship and practices. For the past six months, these men have been scouring the thinly inhabited portions of this and adjoining counties, but as yet there is no evidence of success on their part. Last Sunday night they held services at McCord's schoolhouse, but their audience was small.

All Entries.
All this bulletin goes for the rounds that Earlington's Town Marshal is in worse than the middle of a bad fix; is merely the idle talk of malicious nonentities. These manufacturers of falsehoods who persist in telling what they think will injure their fellowmen are not good citizens for there is surely something the matter with them, and have a very bad case of that.

Karl's Clover Root, the new Blood Purifier, gives freshness and clearness to the complexion and cures constipation. 25c, 50c, and $1.00. Sold by St. Bernard drug store.

Conductor Joe Mitty had charge of the Providence run last week.

As Fast as Money and Men can Build It. It is with pleasure and a deal of pride (not stinking pride) in the growth, prosperity and welfare of our city do we chronicle the progress the St. Bernard Company is making which behooves the early erection of their elegant brick business house. A large force of hands are now engaged excavating and laying a solid rock foundation for the reception of the brick work soon to follow.

German Prune Syrup is a favorite with all ladies who suffer with Headache and Constipation. For sale by all druggists. Price 50c per bottle.

Made One.
Mr. Edward Cavanaugh and Miss Nellie Fox were married Sunday morning at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's father, Israel Fox, a few miles from here. Rev. Jno. O'Brien officiated. Mr. Israel Fox and family and Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Tynan of this city, were among the invited guests.

All These Were Called On.
Herewith is furnished a list of the persons whose premises were entered Friday and Saturday nights of last week: James Crenshaw, E. P. Rucker, Will Brumwell, William Endley, Chas. Curtis, Thos. Wagner, Mrs. Haley, Tom Denton and A. N. Bascom. There may be others who entertained this covetous visitor but have failed to give in their names for publication. The thief was in search of some current funds of the United States, and in a few instances it may be well to state, sums ranging from thirty cents to ten dollars were found and taken.

Adieu.
June 30th, the close of the present quarter, Judge O. J. Farnsworth, who for the past four years has discharged the duties of Earlington's postmaster in a very efficient and satisfactory manner, will very gracefully step down from his official perch, giving his successor a clear field and a fair showing. His competent assistant, Miss Lillian Bolding, will, no doubt, continue to fill the shoes of her predecessor, and will, no doubt, continue to fill the shoes of her predecessor, and will, no doubt, continue to fill the shoes of her predecessor.

You Missed a Treat.
The concert at Assembly Hall last Friday night was not as well attended as it deserved. The recitations and songs of the young people, under the management of Mrs. Ida Walker, were loudly applauded. The instrumental music of Miss Bettie Hopper elicited the applause of the Rev. Wolfe upon the World's Fair eclipsed any thing ever heard in this city in the way of a lecture. The discourse occupied an hour and a half and was listened to with eager attention, and with the exception of some frequent applause not the slightest sound was heard during its delivery. Brother Wolfe is an easy fluent speaker, a vivid descriptionist and well calculated to rivet the attention of an audience. While the concert fell short of financial expectation, it gave universal satisfaction from a stand point of merit.

Against Such There is no Law.
On last Sunday morning, despite the inclemency of the weather, a Sunday School was organized at the Southern Methodist church. Literature for the new quarter was distributed, and all the preliminary arranged for the next conduct of a school with T. D. Walker as Superintendent. Bro. "Joker," as he is familiarly known, is a dear lover of the "wee ones," and other qualifications, which amply fit him for the work in hand. The organization of the school meets our hearty approval and should receive the cooperation and support of not only the members of this church, but the Christian community at large. "The material in Earlington is abundant but the laborers are few," therefore, rally to its support.

A Painful Accident.
The entire community was greatly shocked a few days since in receiving the sad intelligence that Miss Dollie Dean, eldest daughter of our worthy citizen, Mr. J. R. Dean had sustained painful injuries by a severe fall. Miss Dean, it seems, while on her way to the Public Library, in attempting to run down a steep incline at the rear of the building, and by doing so, either stumbled or became unbalanced, falling a distance of at least ten feet, striking with full force on the point of her chin, fracturing her jaw bones, and losing several teeth, her teeth being entirely destroyed. Her injuries are very painful though not necessarily fatal, but grave doubts were entertained at first of her recovery. Miss Dollie is one of our most intelligent, accomplished and charming young ladies, and has a host of friends, many of whom have spent hours at her bedside the past few days, doing all that loving hands and sympathizing hearts can do to relieve her sufferings.

Felant's Successor.
The President, a week ago, sent in the name of Joshua D. Powers of Owensboro, to be Revenue Collector of this district. This settles a spirited fight which has been kept up for weeks within the party. Of Mr. Powers the Owensboro Inquirer has the following to say:
"Joshua D. Powers was born in Hawesville, Ky., October 17, 1844. He resided in that town until manhood, being admitted to the bar in 1873. He removed to Owensboro in 1876, forming a law partnership with the late Judge G. W. Williams. In 1874 he was a member of the legislature from Hancock county, and in 1875 was Assistant State Elector at-large, on the Tilden and Hendricks ticket. He has for many years been prominently identified with Owensboro's banking interests, being successively Vice President and President of the First National Bank, still holding the latter position. He is a Director of the L. & N. St. L. and T. Railroad Company and is interested in many other business and commercial undertakings at home and abroad. He is known as a progressive and public-spirited citizen, in every sense of the word. His race for the Collectorship was characteristic of the man. He goes in to win always, and allows no grass to grow under his own feet, nor under those of his opponents. Col. Powers was married in October, 1875 to Miss Clara Hawes, daughter of Hon. A. G. Hawes, of this city. They reside in a handsome home on Frederica street."

A Large Trial on a Small Scale.

The case of the Commonwealth against John Barnett came off last Saturday. The charge was assault and consequent fracture of the nasal tranquility. At 2 o'clock the town hall was packed closer than a box of sardines. Squire Priest, after solemnly hanging up the beam of justice, declined to note its variations and demanded that the case furnish food for reflection to a jury. A few legal hairs were divided longwise upon this "pint," which resulted in a jury being decided upon. About forty men were summoned, but of these, with the exception of three or four, were considered enough to form an opinion, and indifferent enough to be carrying it concealed about their persons. After some more legal hirsute long division it was agreed to form a panel of this trial and solve the problem of the defendant's guilt or innocence by the Single Rule of Three.

The proof showed that on the third day of June, three country pigs, the property of Mrs. Sisk, had wandered into the city, and despite a law which restricts their freedom to the rural districts, they were at once set to converting the streets into a blackboard and working out problems in Square Root upon the same. About this time, Marshall Barnett laid hold on them and placed them in durance view. Later on, Mrs. Sisk and her sister-in-law appeared on the scene during Barnett's absence, and taking the porkers by the ear and leg, "blasted" them out of the pen and bade them seek more congenial climes. At this juncture, the marshal appeared and attempted to restrain proceedings. Mrs. Sisk exhibited a mammoth barrow and a warlike disposition. Barnett declined having his person illustrated with "steel cuts," disarmed her and placed nippers upon her wrist to induce the lady to accept his company down town. A crowd gathered and some excitement ensued. Judge Cowell recognized her to appear at trial on a subsequent day. She proceeded to get out papers against Barnett, charging him with assault, undue violence and breach of the peace.

The Commonwealth was represented by Messrs. Wardell and Headley. Judge Sisk appearing for defendant. The case was turned over to those legal lights, who, for the next two hours, deluged the audience with a torrent of language which caused the eyes of hearers to hang pendant upon stems. After citing all the law that has ever been given falling was, beginning with the ten commandments, embracing all the Mosaic ramifications, referring to "Blackstone," adding the "Blue Laws of Connecticut," appealing to "Newton's Law of Gravity," utilizing the whole "Statutes of Kentucky" and quoting "Lynch's Code" from alpha to omega, the case was turned over to the audience, who promptly returned a verdict of "not guilty," and the discomfited Commonwealth, figuratively speaking, tucked its tail and retired.

THE NATION'S HOLIDAY
Will be celebrated by Grand Running Races at Evansville.

The races at Evansville this year will be, by all odds, the most interesting and exciting ever held in Indiana. They open on the Fourth and continue until the Fifth, and everything possible has been done by the Association to make the races complete and enjoyable.

The price of admission to the grounds has been placed at 50 cents, which includes a seat in the Grand Stand, where spectators can see the entire track from start to finish.

There will be five exciting races each day, besides a grand Steeple Chase. This will be an event of the greatest importance and will certainly excite a glowing glow which laid open the scalp for about one inch, making a severe but not serious wound. At the time the injury was received the train was running very slow or else the blow would have been much more likely to prove a serious one.

As it is getting along nicely, and will only lose a few days work thereby.

The effect of the World's Fair traffic upon the railroads is a universal topic of interest at the present time. Investors, speculators and business men generally are discussing this question anxiously because, in one way and another, it means much to them. Take the case of the Chicago and North Western, for example; he expects his holdings to appreciate in value as a result of the Fair; the speculator is projecting campaigns, the success of which depends upon the advances in railroad stocks; and the business man naturally looks for a good business year during the progress of the Fair.

The railroad companies have already agreed as to rates, excursions and otherwise, to the Fair, and people will doubtless be able to travel tolerably cheap, although the roads intend to work this Fair business to the utmost. After the Fair has been opened and running a month or so, the roads will know better what to do, and along in June or July, rates may be modified as circumstances warrant. The travel from all parts of the country to Chicago will be simply enormous, and results alone will show whether the companies can handle this additional traffic economically and at a profit.

The roads going into Chicago will benefit the most by the Fair. Over these lines the travel of persons who only to stay a day and return the next, or who go and come the same day will be most profitable. Such people will come and go many times, and the effect of this kind is acknowledged to be the most profitable kind. Hence the trunk line and some others who, perhaps, benefit most largely from the World's Fair. All lines interested propose to keep all their rolling stock moving and will, of course, adjust rates to secure this result as far as possible.

The many of the roads to carry in first-rate condition as regards equipment, having spent money freely for new rolling stock and repairs in 1892. The expenditure of these large sums is furthermore necessary, because the severe depression of 1890-91 has left many of the roads in such a state that their expenses to the lowest notch, which left the roads in indifferent condition. Road beds have been carefully attended to, preparatory to handling the enormous travel to and from Chicago.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

MINING BEES.
The St. Bernard are shipping quite a lot of coal to Cloverport, Ky.

Messrs. Unstead and Farnsworth now have their new shingle machine, and will soon be prepared to make shingles by the thousands.

Another one of the boys returned last week, finding that the miner fares better here than at most places, and will therefore settle down in our quiet little burg.

Polemen Day and Evans went quite a force of their men, when minus were not running last week, excavating for a cellar under the new St. Bernard store.

Those relic hunters did not meet with much success last week, but, as they have several fields of labor located, they will, no doubt, be able to make some valuable discoveries.

David Cansler, writing back from New Mexico, says he has fine prospects of securing a position with a coal and coke company there. We wish him the greatest success in his new field of labor.

Mr. James Crenshaw came near securing some game last Saturday night. After he had retired for the night, and was enjoying a sweet slumber, some unknown thief entered his residence and proceeded to search for money and other valuables, when Mr. Crenshaw suddenly awoke and reached for his pistol, which he had placed under his head; but the scoundrel had fled and was out and gone before he could seize his weapon, thus, probably preventing a funeral.

WHISTLE POSTS.

Agent James Gooch of Hanson is taking a few days rest this week.

Operator Hancock of Covington is visiting relatives at Madisonville.

Robt. Hallway with crew of men came here last week to rebuild the passenger platform.

Conductor Lew Waltz did a booming business one day last week handling 168 cars in a single day.

The double-headers still continue to run and move an immense amount of freight at one time.

Roadmaster Robson was down on Henderson division last week closely inspecting the track.

Mr. John Cary, formerly an agent and operator on the Henderson division is lying at the point of death at Henderson.

The report is in circulation that a new passenger car will soon be built at Slaughter and Wash feels proud over the prospects of a new building.

Even the oldest and most careful of men are sometimes caught napping as was plainly revealed the other night when Engineer Harrison was piloting between two cars that were uncoupled.

Little dreaming that an engine had hold of them and which, at the time he started across, was standing several feet apart but before he could get past the draw head the cars suddenly came together and he was caught between them and severely bruised and lacerated, yet the doctor thinks that with care nothing serious will happen, and at present he is doing well.

That was indeed a narrow escape from death that Conductor Tom Brown had last Thursday night. He was a passenger train enroute to Nashville when something got wrong with one of the cars and to ascertain what the trouble was he stepped down on one of the lower steps and was hanging over and looking under the car when he was struck on the head by a blow which laid open the scalp for about one inch, making a severe but not serious wound. At the time the injury was received the train was running very slow or else the blow would have been much more likely to prove a serious one.

As it is getting along nicely, and will only lose a few days work thereby.

Prof. Campbell is determined that his slack or coat washer shall be so adjusted that any quality of coal can be put of all impurities by it and in order that such an end may be attained, he has located a machine where he has a better chance to discover any defect that may exist, and remedy the same. Thus far the professor is much encouraged, and now feels like he can see his way clear to success.
